

Artist in Residence Program Overview

The Artist in Residence program at the Art & History Museums of Maitland (A&H) has a rich history. For over 80 years, the center has provided artists with the space and freedom to break from expectations and embrace the spirit of exploration.

The program supports today's artists by providing living and studio space to individual artists for 4-weeks. The studio and living quarters are located within the historical Maitland Art Center compound, boasting a thriving local studio residency program, an Art School, a contemporary art museum, and three history museums. The program is ideal for artists who work independently and will benefit from an atmosphere of solitude. The program is open to one visiting artist at a time, and artists receive a $500 living stipend.

Program History

The Research Studio was founded in 1937 by artist and architect Jules André Smith as a winter artist retreat. Smith was a vocal proponent for the acceptance of modern art at a time when traditional expressions still dominated artistic tastes. A chance meeting between Smith and philanthropist Mary Louise Curtis Bok would lead to a life-long friendship that would have a lasting impact on Florida's burgeoning art scene.

Bonding over their shared love of modern art movements and dismay over the region's reluctance to look towards the future, the two visionaries conspired to establish a "Research Gallery" where artists would show experimental artworks. The plan quickly grew into a full-fledged residency, with four artists being brought in every winter with the goal that they would "discard as far as possible the conscious influence of other artists or paintings" and devote themselves entirely to artistic exploration.

The Research Studio operated from 1937 until Smith's death in 1959. Over 65 artists lived and worked at the site during that time, including notable artists such as Milton Avery, Ralston Crawford, Elizabeth Sparhawk Jones, Consuelo Kanaga, Teng Chui, and others. Today, the historic campus is known as the Maitland Art Center, where Smith and Bok's visionary legacy of artistic research and experimentation continues through today's Artist in Residence Program.

A Message from Chief Curator Dan Hess

Welcome to Espero.

Upon arrival, you are shown your residence and historic studio, given your keys, and allowed to rest from your travels. The following day, you will be given a tour of our beautiful grounds with some historical context about the Research Studio and those who walked these spaces before you. What happens next is up to you.

Artists who succeed in our residency programs are self-motivated, mature enough to let go of their proposed plans when needed, and confident enough to let our location's spirit and unique energy take them on an unintended journey. This happens quite often. Through our discussions with our resident artists, we have found that the projects initially proposed are done in a work/life setting rife with distractions. Here, those distractions are removed.

We define an artist's success in our residency programs the same way our founder, André Smith, did, meaning "your development as an artist through the enrichment by thought and experience and searching which this interlude will offer you. The Research Studio has come into existence because of our firm conviction that true development can come only through a mental relaxation, a releasing of opposing restrictions. In every artist there is an unquenchable desire to extend themselves beyond these limiting boundaries."

Artist in Residence Application Guidelines

The Art & History Museums of Maitland is now accepting applications for its 2027 Artist in Residence spots. The following residency spots are available:

- Residency 1: April 13 – May 10
- Residency 2: May 25 – June 23
- Residency 3: August 31 – September 27
- Residency 4: October 19 – November 15

Applications will be accepted until October 19, 2025

Eligibility

A&H's Artist in Residence program is open to visual artists whose studio practice centers on painting, drawing, printmaking, installation art, and sculpture. Established and emerging artists are encouraged to apply, and the program is open to national and international artists 25+ years of age. International artists are responsible for obtaining the proper visas and all temporary immigration requirements, if applicable. A working knowledge of English is needed.

Who will be chosen?

Artistic merit and promise are the basis for selections. A panel of art professionals familiar with our residency programs will independently review applications and supporting materials. Final awards of residencies are at the discretion of A&H. A&H cannot invite spouses or partners to accompany the artists in residence. No pets are allowed.

What is provided?

A&H's Artist in Residence program offers a picturesque historical environment with opportunities for research and contemplation. The residency provides studio space, living space, and a stipend of $500 for the four weeks. The artist must bring all artistic equipment and materials.

If selected, artists are also given the option to teach a workshop as part of our Art School program.

What are the expectations?

- Artists are expected to actively occupy and work in their studio space throughout the residency.
- Artists are also asked to participate in our First Saturday Open Studio Hours, in which the public is able to visit all of our resident and studio artists in their studios during our museum hours from 11am – 4pm.
- Artists are asked to participate in social media video features highlighting their residency.

Accessibility:

Please note that due to the historical nature of the buildings, the studio and residence are not accessible for wheelchairs and can be difficult for those with mobility challenges. We will do our best to try to accommodate individual artists' needs. Please reach out for more information.
